SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 23, 1864.

ENGLISH POWER IN INDIA.

We have read with interest an editorial from the London Morning Herald, on English power in India, in which fears are freely expressed that much trouble will yet occur to that government before its authority is fully established in that country.

A person with an unpronounceable name has appeared in southern India, pledged to expel the English and to restore the Hindoo rule. He expects to do this within a period of two years, and, says the Herald, however ridiculous this news may appear, there have been indications foretelling something like a repetition of the great meeting—even upon a more tremendous scale. Our readers are familiar with the great Sepoy meeting which opened a horrible scene of bloodshed and devastation throughout India, and which finally culminated in blowing living victims from the cannon's mouth. Well may any power dread a repetition of such a meeting, and such a fearful exercise of retributive justice.

The article asserts with much earnestness that "it is idle to believe that we (the English) have finally consolidated our power in any part of Asia," and then proceeds to show the reasons therefore, which to our view are well founded. Among the reasons may be mentioned—the strength of fanatical prophecy in those latitudes—the faith of the natives in their traditions, and their firm belief that at no remote day they will again rule and possess the land; occupy their own palaces and issue edicts from their own thrones. The tenacity with which they cling to these beliefs and opinions are amazing—and added to these beliefs and opinions is the spirit of revenge living in the heart of every native of India, however much he may disguise that spirit by a masked countenance. The Herald refers to this fact and cites a case in illustration as follows: "When the Sepoys rebelled, a haridar, before being blown away from the gun was asked why he hated the English. He replied that they had slain his ancestor Tipoo beneath the walls of Seringapatam" and then adds, "such vengeance is undying. It breathes silently in millions of Indian hearts."

It is affirmed that all the benefits which England has conferred upon the Hindoos have failed to turn to loyalty the bigots of his nation—that they look back to the time when the Gaurias and the Ghaznevide reigned over wealthy provinces, and when Europeans were humble traders soliciting privileges from Jehanghine and Shah Jehan.

One paragraph in the article attracts our attention more forcibly than any other. It is asserted that Khan, a native writer of extensive knowledge and rare intelligence, affirms that the whisper of prediction, pointing to an Indian, India in the future is manna in the mouth of a Brahminical or Mahomedan fanatic—and that the less educated inhabitants of Delhi would, if questioned, prefer the massacres of Nader to the administration of the English.

The Herald in giving publicity to the condition of affairs in India, wishes it to be known that the facts are not employed as an argument against the sovereignty of England or that the more enlightened position of Hindustan is hostile to English rule, but simply to show the existence of an immense superstitious power lying in wait for an opportunity to sweep English rule from the land.

There are two hundred Indian princes who feel themselves degraded by English authority, and they would encourage any one of the number to rebel who could inspire the princely caste with confidence. The article concludes with the assertion that "England has nothing to fear unless the Indian administration be as blind and feeble as occasionally it is purposeless and visionary."

Our own opinion is that such an article would not have appeared unless there were causes for it—and if "England has nothing to fear" there were certainly no causes for the article.

We hope for the credit of civilization that we may never hear of another meeting in India such as characterized the one in existence only a few years ago—that we may never again hear of women and children being slaughtered in cold blood, and that we may never again hear of English law blowing living human beings from the cannon's mouth in order to vindicate and satisfy outraged justice.

[COMMUNICATED.]

EGAN CANON, N. T., Nov. 20, '64.

EDITOR VERDETTE:—Being at this place for a few days, I write you, thinking perhaps it would be interesting to you and a number of your readers about Camp Douglas. I left Captain Smith and his command on the morning of the 13th instant, at the Humboldt wells, and all was well up to that time. We encountered considerable snow and very cold weather in crossing the Goose Creek Mountains. Aside from that we had very good weather, and I think it still continues so up to the present date. I was sent from Humboldt wells up to Fort Ruby with our election returns. We held an election on Goose Creek, everything passing off smoothly and quietly, and I am proud to say we polled 105 votes for Abraham Lincoln, and not one vote with a blot or scratch on it. Our commanding officers were so highly pleased over this that they took a "smile." I was tempted to "smile," and the men all "smiled." In coming to Fort Ruby I got a "permit" to run over and see Egan Canon, as that is the place where our treasure lies. I found the Canon right where it was last spring when I left it, but considerably changed in appearance. At the head of the canon is a town called "Erina;" it has about twenty houses in it built of wood and adobe, and most of them have a very neat and respectable appearance. There are some six or eight families in it, but no public house or restaurant where a traveler or a hungry miner could get his "grub." There is no store of any consequence either, which is a great drawback, for there are a few individuals here who would buy something. But I suppose all of these conveniences will be furnished for cash early in the spring. You must remember that this place is young yet, only a little over a year old, and it can wait; by next summer it will run; that is, I mean the people will be running here. But what allures them on here is the rich silver ledges. I am pretty well acquainted with this place, and have been here at times from the first discovery, and I give you, and all who may read this, my word as a gentleman and a man of truth, that Egan Canon or Gold Canon Mining District, is no hoax, neither is the rich silver ledges any hoax. I tell you I have seen it "sticken out" of the ground all over these hills. I will give you some of the most prominent lodes at present:

The "Gilligan" stands first yet. There is a shaft 150 feet deep on the ledge. At that depth it is about eight feet wide, with a No. 1 rock.

The "Hope" has a shaft sunk sixty feet, the ledge about two feet wide, with the richest rock now known.

The "Jenny bird" has a shaft forty feet deep, ledge about three feet wide and very rich rock.

There are parties at work on the "Smith," "Eagle" and "Savage" lodes. They are from twelve to fifteen feet on the ledges, which are proving very rich. It is thought that the "Savage" lode will prove the richest in the canon. The "Gold Canon" or "Oro Fino" discovery claim, is very rich in gold. My advice to owners in the above named ledges is, to hold on to your "feet," and do not part with them for a song. The money that you may be required to expend in working them will not be thrown away, but in a short time it will bring you a nice round sum.

I do not doubt that there are plenty of as good ledges as the ones I have mentioned, but I have not seen them, they have not been prospected, and I would not advise any one to buy a piece of rock sticking out of the ground.

There has been one late discovery of a ledge called the "Sabbath Bell," by Captain John Quinn, which is proving to be rich.

I would advise any good, enterprising, energetic, go-ahead-kind-of-a-man, to come to Egan Canon next spring, whether he has capital or not. Come on! you can find something to do, and something that will pay. And to men of capital I would say, invest in property or stock of some kind at Egan Canon. You will certainly have large profits and quick returns. But lazy, lounging loafers and bums, need not come, as they could not make an honest living, and, besides they would give the place a bad name. I want no one to come to this place with the expectation of making a fortune in a few months. It will take years perhaps, but it is here, and by industry and economy any man can make his fortune in a few years. This is my honest opinion of the Egan Canon Silver Mines. I leave here in a day or two to rejoin my Company at Fort Churchill, and from thence to Camp Union, California, where I expect to remain this winter, and where I will ever hail with pleasure the UNION VERDETTE, as the "grand pioneer of Utah" in installing a new principle and changing the views and people of that Territory. You must excuse this short epistle, and if agreeable to all parties, you shall hear from me again when I arrive at Camp Union. Until then, I remain, yours, with respect, FRANK.

BY PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

[SPECIAL TO THE UNION DAILY VERDETTE.]

Louisville, Nov. 23d.

After Gillam's recent defeat, Breckinridge advanced to Strawberry Plains and Blair's Cross Road, threatening Knoxville.

Cumberland Gap, Nov. 21.

Breckinridge advanced to Powell's bridge, six miles from Cumberland Gap. Heavy skirmishing all day. Burbridge has moved out from Lexington with a strong force to protect the Kentucky border from the anticipated invasion of Breckinridge's forces.

New York, Nov. 23d.

Richmond papers of Monday state that Sherman's army was marching on Macon, and report his advance having reached the out posts of the city. They have no doubt that Cobb's militia is able to hold Macon. At Griffin he captured a portion of the Legislature on the march. This spread out our forces, sweeping a wide space of devastation, and creating ruin to all farms. Sherman's other columns are reported moving on Augusta and Milledgeville.

Washington, Nov. 23d.

Richmond papers of 22d contain dispatches from Macon that on Sunday Sherman was within 18 miles of Macon, marching upon the city. It is believed in high military circles that before this time Macon has fallen. Information, considered reliable, is received, that the city is only garrisoned by Georgia militia, composed chiefly of old men and boys, and that no attempt will be made to defend the city, they fearing its destruction would follow.

New York, Nov. 23d.

The Tribune has a letter from Brasher Falls, N. Y., reporting much excitement along the line of the northern railroad in consequence of the rumor that a large body of raiders are collected in Canada, and have armed themselves for the purpose of making an assault upon this section of the State. It was the intention to tear up the track, destroy locomotives, depots, and commence their task of house breaking and highway robbery.

Halifax, Nov. 23d.

The steamer Medea, from Bermuda 19th, reports the pirate Chica Manga completed her repairs and sailed on the 10th. The value of her captures is estimated at over half a million.

New York, Nov. 23.

The gunboat Neptune sailed from Philadelphia on Sunday, on special service connected with conveying the California mail steamers. It was currently reported at Fortress Monroe on Monday, that Butler had blown the end out of his canal and let the water in.

An officer who left our lines in front of Petersburg on Monday, reports at that time no signs of the evacuation of Petersburg. The rebel works were well manned, and the pickets on both sides kept up the usual firing.

St. Louis, Nov. 23.

A Paducah dispatch yesterday says the gunboats Peasta and Powpow arrived on Sunday from a reconnaissance up the river. They found the river lined with rebel pickets from Pine Bluff to Johnsonville. The rebel General Lyon, commanding that district, has orders to watch the river closely and will blockade it soon.

Forrest has a pontoon across the river at Chickawa. Deserters and scouts reported to the gunboats that Hood's army is 35,000 strong, with 37 pieces of artillery. He intended to operate in Middle and Eastern Tennessee and Kentucky, and was marching on Pulaski, Tenn. He expects ultimately to seize Cumberland Gap. His men are greatly in need of clothing and supplies, which he hopes to obtain by plundering the towns through which he passes.

Advices from Fayetteville, Ark., say Col. Brooks, with 2,000 rebels attacked that place Oct. 28th, but was repulsed with considerable loss. From that time until Nov. 3rd, the town had been closely invested, when Gen. Hazens, with about 6,000 of Prices retreating forces came up and bombarded the place for five hours with two pieces of artillery, but were held at bay until the next day, when Curtis and Blunt arrived, and the rebels skedaddled. They lost nearly 100 in killed and wounded. A missionary who traveled some forty miles with Price, reports that Gen. told him he had lost over 10,000 men in killed, wounded and desertions, and his expedition had been most disastrous.

THE RAILWAY POST OFFICE SYSTEM.—One of the new Post Office cars for the line between New York and Washington is described by the Washington Star. It is 45 feet 5 inches long, 9 feet 4 inches wide, and 9 feet high in the center. On either side are words informing the public that it is the "through line between New York and Washington." There are also the usual apertures through which letters may be conveniently dropped in for mailing. In the inside are two cases, each containing two hundred "pigeon holes," of rather larger size than ordinary, and forty boxes, each one foot square, so arranged that the matter placed in them cannot be jostled out by the motion of the car. There is in front of each case a narrow shelf for the accommodation of the clerks, with drawers beneath the hooks for the mail pouches, while on the opposite side is a large table for stamping purposes. There are also closets for clothes, sofas, water coolers, and every convenience for those who shall travel with the car; and it is fitted up with the most approved ventilating windows. As soon as the train starts the clerks will begin the distribution of the mails. The way mails will be made up first, and at each station mail matter intended for the particular locality will be put on, and matter for other points on the route received.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A VALUABLE TROTTER HORSE.—The celebrated trotting horse Roy George, owned by Field, of Buffalo, died suddenly at the stables of Carpenter's Island Park Course, yesterday morning. The horse was apparently well ten minutes before his death. He had taken his morning feed and trotted twice around the course, and paver moved with more spirit and vigor. On reaching the stable he suddenly fell down and died without a single struggle or groan, before the harness could be taken off. Disease of the heart was the probable cause. Roy George was valued at fifteen thousand dollars, and only last week Field declined an offer of ten thousand dollars for him.—Troy (N. Y.) Press, Oct. 10th.

ROLL OF INFANTRY.—The Salisbury (N. C.) Watchman has the following: The five Union officers, consisting of a Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, Major and two Captains—who were dishonorably expelled by Gen. Sherman from his army and sent into the rebel lines for speaking disrespectfully of the President of the United States in the presence of the enemy, while accompanying a flag of truce, have arrived in Richmond, where they are to be confined during the war for fighting against their principles.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Information is wanted concerning the whereabouts of one Geo. B. McClellan, formerly an officer in the United States Army. It has been reported that he has recently been running for something somewhere up North, out West, or down South, but late dispatches do not confirm the rumor, and his friends are apprehensive that he has been jayhawked. Perhaps he has left the United States, and gone to New Jersey.—Ex.

THE CAMP DOUGLAS.
We are in receipt of a letter from G. M. Gillett, a discharged Volunteer, who left Camp Douglas on the 16th October last, for the Eastern States. His letter is dated at Fort Halleck, I. T., Oct. 31st. He writes that they have, during their journey, met with successive and severe storms of wind and snow, and bitter freezing cold weather. He also states that the snow had fallen to such a depth that it was almost impossible to find the road—besides in some places they encountered heavy and impenetrable drifts.

They, with other parties, are enjoying the kind hospitality of Maj. Mackey, 7th Iowa Vol., the Commanding Officer at Fort Halleck—who has given them shelter, food and feed for their animals. He also writes that the Western stage coach foundered in a snow bank on the night of Oct. 30th, and informs us that the passengers were obliged to dig the coach out the best way they could—the coach drove on and the passengers came on to that place in a nearly perished and prostrate condition. One of the passengers has not yet been found or heard from, and fears are entertained that he is frozen—detachments of soldiers are searching for him, but are as yet unsuccessful. The discharged men from Camp Douglas now at that Post number 28, as follows: 20 of Co. M, 5 of Co. K, 1 of Co. H, 2d Cav. C. V., and 1 of Co. A and 1 of Co. G, 3rd Infy, C. V. They will remain there until the storms abate, and then proceed on their way Eastward. He says the commanding officer has left nothing undone to alleviate their sufferings or to make them comfortable, and his kindness and urbanity will never be forgotten.

The Comedy of the "Barrack Room" drew a well filled house at our Camp Theater on Thursday evening, and the Dramatic Troupe added another laurel to their already established reputation. Mr. Dalton appeared as Colonel Ferrier, Mr. Richardson as the Marquis de Cruze, and Miss Julia Singleton as Clarisse. Comment is altogether superfluous where such merit, talent and proficiency in acting are combined. One feature of this Troupe we cannot help noticing in particular, which is the thoroughly committing to memory of their several parts, and this company have so aptly and diligently applied themselves for the perfection of the characters they represent that the (in most theaters) indispensable personage, prompter, is not required with them. "Urgent business" would allow us to remain but a few moments—so we did not see the Finale.

SPECIMENS.—Mr. J. D. Bayliss (formerly of S. L. City, and more recently of Virginia City, Montana) has shown us a large number of specimens of gold-bearing rock, prospected by him at various distances of from 5 to 30 miles from Virginia City. Some of the rock specimens put one in mind of the early days of quartz mining in Nevada—which so far as the eye can discern or the glasses verify, all are rich and require but mills for the purpose of developing them. Mr. Bayliss has done considerable, both in this Territory and elsewhere, in developing the mines, and we trust that either in the "St. Louis" or the "Richmond," the "Gen. Connor" or the "Queen," he may realize an ample return for his expenditure of time and labor.

LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—The Young Men's Literary Association held its usual meeting on Thursday evening at the office of the Provost Guard. We understand that the Association, in connection to their membership, a hall has been procured for the use of the Association, and that arrangements have been inaugurated with a view to establishing a Reading Room and initiating a course of lectures.

Refer to Scott, Kerr & Co., Clark & Co., Bankers,

American Invention.
No people are so full of ingenious little expedients for saving labor and material, as are the Americans. The force of circumstances has made the Yankee a master in the art of extemporizing little "dodges" in mechanism. Self-help is the great lesson a man receives when he sets foot in a new country, and it is in the invention of helps in metal and wood—helps which need no wages, and which never strike, or tire, or grow sick—that the New Englander excels.

There is nothing out of a pantomime more ludicrously clever than some of the inventions which have of late years been introduced into this country. [Great Britain] from the West. The process of making common pails by machinery is so rapid as to baffle the eye, and so comically instantaneous that the stranger who witnesses it for the first time, laughs over it as a most excellent practical joke. There is a whizz of revolving wheels, a sputter of light shavings, a precession of little slaves chasing one another in the air, then another whizz of the collected staves, and the bucket is hooped and made. Scarcely less amusing is the little mechanical device for paring apples by machinery. The machinery is the veriest toy—simple and cheap—but it brings off the rind with an almost magical delicacy, and while it pares the fruit with an accuracy which seems to bespeak a special sense of touch, it slices the apple and takes out the core at the same time.

Success in such small matters has made the American bold, and has trained him to habits of innovation. So far from dreading novelty, he likes novelty for its own sake, and to secure it, he often reverses our way of doing things. In his steamboats, he builds up the cabins tier over tier upon deck, instead of below, and he suffers the engine to work high in air above the many stories of cabins. When he wants to put another story to a great building, he adds the new floor at the bottom instead of at the top; and be it a bank, hotel or huge store, he is ready at your command either to lift the entire block or to slide it on its travels to a more eligible location.

In printing newspapers he builds his type upon cylinders instead of laying it upon the slow-working table, and he makes the machine pick up and take off its own printed copies with a regularity and neatness which no number of trained hands can equal. His gunboats are floating martello towers, that can fire fore and aft as readily as from the side. His river steamers are amphibious, and may go anywhere where it is a little damp. He is partial to machinery because it does not gumble, is not impudent, is not extortionate; and hence it comes that his crops are gathered with patent reapers, his linen is washed with wooden hands, his cows are milked by the patent cow-milker, his potatoes as well as his apples are pared by one of the queerest little steel kitchen-maids, who has no "followers," and who waxes none of the fruit; and even his chairs, his tables, and his cabinet work in general, come from the factories large as cotton mills, where they are turned out in parts by swift moving machinery. —Dundee (Scottland) Advertiser.

A girl, hearing the lady of the house, went to a lawyer's band to bring "Dombey & Son" with him when he came home to tea, laid two extra plates on the supper table for the supposed visitors.
